Rabbi Barry Cytron, who has worked with young people for decades, is the Jewish Chaplain and Assistant Director of the Center for Religious and Spiritual Life at Macalester College in St. Paul, Minn., and a long-time participant in interfaith work. He will share the story of his own faith journey and “how he believes” in an informal conversational setting. DMARC’s interfaith youth work is funded in part by the Larry and Kay Myers Endowment for Interfaith Youth Engagement.

Rabbi Cytron will be in town to serve as inaugural speaker for the David Bear Memorial Interfaith Lecture Series, on Thursday, May 5, 2011, 7 p.m., at the Tifereth Israel Synagogue, 924 Polk Boulevard, Des Moines. Open to the public and no cost to attend. In his address, he will guide the audience through a dynamic exploration of forgiveness, based on a PBS film series, “Forgiveness: A Time to Love and a Time to Hate,” by Helen Whitney.
